pulse ID A dedicated Shopify plug-in
Integrate personalization into your Shopify site and automate production with Pulse ID. Businesses of all sizes can now see realistic renderings of all custom products. Offer your customers more options to customize products!

The Shopify PulseID plugin supports embroidery, DTG printing, and laser engraving, while automating your workflow from order to production in a single, unified administrator interface. No development is necessary, just import your Shopify products and apply your customizable settings.

Seamless integration with Shopify

This PulseID plugin has been specially designed to work in Shopify and make it easy for you to work on all levels for your personalization activity. Once your customer has defined their customization choices and completed their order on your Shopify site, all orders will be processed automatically and PulseID will print a technical sheet that can be scanned directly on the machine (embroidery, laser, or DTG printer) for automatic file load into the machine. This automation process eliminates handling errors and reduces the time spent setting up and operating the machine.

Full customization

With PulseID, you decide exactly with which elements you can personalize on your products. Easily select and change the fonts and colors that appear on your site. You can assign different design elements to different products based on what looks like it can assign different design elements to different products depending on what seems to be best suited for better rendering and quality. Customize the location and personalization area for each product individually. If you have a very large or complicated design, you can adjust the price to match the cost of production.

Total automation

This plug-in uses the full power of PulseID automation technology. There is no need for scanning or even manual creation of designs. Once a template is defined, all orders using that template will be created automatically with a production ready file.

Easy to use

Once PulseID is installed on your Shopify site, no software development is required. You will be trained to add new designs and products to your site quickly and easily. There is also a dedicated page for the administrator which displays the situation in real time and offers full control of orders and production.
