CHEFCENTRIC

Mercer Culinary is obsessed with the foodservice industry.

Everything we do is centered around how it affects culinary professionals. Our job is to make your job more enjoyable, easier, and more efficient.

Our collective decades of experience behind the line allows us to engage with you, listen to your issues, and come up with innovative solutions which tackle the problems of today's foodservice operations. These collaborations have resulted in the ever-expanding product offering you will find in the following pages. So many of these products have a story – the result of your feedback, issues, and challenges.

We love this industry. There is nothing like it and we cherish the relationships built over decades. Thank you for being our partner and allowing us to grow together.

Forged vs. Stamped

There are many choices in professional cutlery. Choose the best option for your needs.

Forged

One complete piece of steel, from the tip of the blade to the end of the handle.

Forged knives are made from a single piece of steel. The metal is heated to a high temperature, rearranging its molecular structure which provides excellent strength. This results in a cutting edge that stays sharper longer and is easier to maintain.

Forged knives have a bolster, the center support piece between the blade and the handle. This adds weight and balance to the knife and protection for your fingers. Forged knives also feature a full tang, the portion of the metal enclosed by the handle.

Stamped

Machine cut from one large strip of steel.

A die is loaded into a press to cut the knife shape from the steel blank. The blade is tempered, sharpened, and finished. This manufacturing process makes the knives more cost effective to produce. Stamped knives are usually thinner and lighter, offering an economic alternative to traditional forged cutlery.

Given their lighter characteristics, more downward force may be required compared to heavier forged blades. Because of their thinner profile, blades may also require regular maintenance more often than forged cutlery.

Knife Metals

Steel is the heart of the blade. The choice of blade materials is a huge component of knife performance. Heat treatment, blade geometry, edge grinding, and handle design also contribute to performance.

In deciding on the right knife, consider the following blade attributes:

- > Strength – hardness/ability to take a load without permanently deforming
- > Wear Resistance – ability to withstand surface abrasions
- > Edge Holding – ability of a blade to hold an edge

Blades contain a variety of elements which contribute to the above attributes.

- > Carbon – all steel contains carbon, which adds hardness to the blade. The more carbon, the harder the blade
- > Chromium – adds hardness, but also allows the knife to hold an edge and contributes to rust-resistance
- > Vanadium – allows a knife to retain an extra-sharp edge
- > Molybdenum – contributes strength and wear-resistance
- > Manganese – contributes strength and wear-resistance

Steps for a perfect fit

1. Stand up straight with arms hanging straight by sides.
2. Breathe normal. Wrap measuring tape under armpits around largest part of chest.

3. In the back, wrap tape measure across shoulder blades.
4. Tape measure should be snug, not tight.

5. Keep measuring tape parallel to the ground.
6. Add an inch to measurement if a looser fit is desired.
